

Mangoes, Motorbikes And Menopause

Blurb

At sixty-two, Sally did something wildly out of character.

She left.

After decades of marriage, routines, sensible decisions and an increasingly exciting social life built around discounted dishwasher tablets, she packed a suitcase, boarded a plane, and moved to Thailand. What could possibly go wrong? Quite a lot, as it turns out.

Within months she acquires:

- an aggressively ugly rescue dog called Gary
- a scooter she probably shouldn't be trusted with
- a friendship group made entirely of opinionated expat women
- a complicated relationship with humidity
- and unexpected feelings for a man she absolutely did not plan for.

Between night markets, visa runs, monsoon seasons, fish pedicures, Christmas under ceiling fans and enough awkward cultural misunderstandings to fill a small embassy, Sally slowly discovers something she thought had quietly disappeared years ago: herself.

Warm, witty and full of heart, Mangoes, Motorbikes & Menopause is a funny and uplifting story about second chances, friendship, starting over, and discovering that life doesn't stop at sixty.

Sometimes it's only just beginning. Perfect for readers who love humour, travel, women's fiction, found family, later-life romance and stories that make you laugh and then unexpectedly cry in public.

Author Emma Jayne Earp, Genre Feelgood, Date May 2026, Formats Paperback and ebook, 367 pages (Paperback)

Available at Amazon HERE (Paperback) and HERE (ebook).