Fiction – The Travels Of Dr. Rebecca Harper

1 – A Matter Of Time - Dr. Rebecca Harper travels to Nevada following graduation from veterinary school. She leaves her husband and small daughter to interview at a veterinary clinic near Lake Tahoe. Rebecca is introduced to an area where the mythical television series, Comstock, was filmed.

She is involved in an accident while riding in the Eastern Sierras. Injured and disoriented, Rebecca must fight to survive. She eventually walks out of the mountains and into the set where the television series was filmed. There she meets actors who resemble the beloved 1950s characters of the canceled television series. It must be a revival.

Or is it? Is she trapped in a time warp? Are these real people? How can she return to her husband and daughter? Can she survive in the 1850s without the modern conveniences she is now accustomed to, such as radiographs, Oreos, and Tampons? A Matter of Time is the first book about a young woman's life in the 1800s as she searches to find a way back to her time.

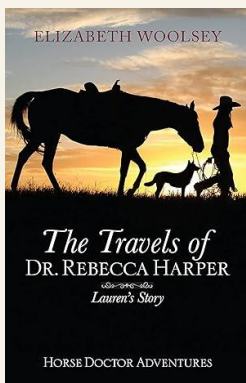

2 – Troubled Waters - Dr. Rebecca Harper is now married to a prominent rancher and future subject of the television series, Comstock. She is currently a qualified doctor and veterinarian who balances her duties as the Virginia City town doctor and her home duties on the Cattle Creek Ranch. Her adventures take her from the safe haven of the ranch to faraway places.

As a doctor and veterinarian, Rebecca must deal with human and animal health issues without antibiotics and pain medication.

Through this, her salvation is her beloved mountain valley, Hank Heaven, where she retreats from the demands of her professional and family's needs. There she reads, fly fishes, and skinnydips, despite her husband's strong disapproval.

She yearns for the daughter she left when she arrived in the 1800s. She laments that she doesn't have children, despite several opportunities to adopt orphans.

Will Rebecca return to her former time in the future? She knows there is a portal. Will she use it and abandon the family and town that need her?

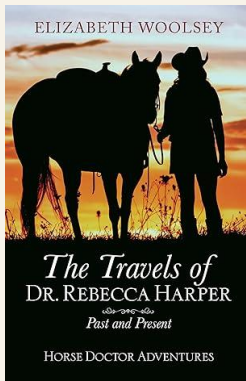

3 – Lauren's Story - Dr. Lauren Harper recently graduated from veterinary school - no surprises here. Her father is a vet, as was her long-deceased mother, Dr. Rebecca Harper. Lauren's mom was killed in a landslide when Lauren was only three years old.

On Lauren's first day home from college, she discovers a story written by her grandfather about his life, including his attempts to find Lauren's mother after the accident. Lauren learned to ride while accompanying her grandfather in his fruitless search for his daughter.

Lauren's on her way to join her fiancé in Texas, but all is not as it seems. Revelations cause her to reevaluate her plans - recalculating route! Lauren's life takes a turn that will find her in Nevada and close to the area where her mother disappeared over twenty years ago.

She hopes to practice equine veterinary medicine and do a bit of sleuthing about her mother's mysterious disappearance. What could go wrong? Lauren's modern-day adventures rival her mother's. Will she stay in her current position, or will she seek a life that gives her security that any recent graduate would relish? This is once again a mixture of veterinary stories, adventure, and love. But does it end Happily ever after? You be the judge.

4 – Past And Present - Dr. Lauren Harper joins her mother, Dr. Rebecca Harper Buchanan, after more than twenty years of separation. It can only be a short visit. Lauren has her modern family and fiancé to consider.

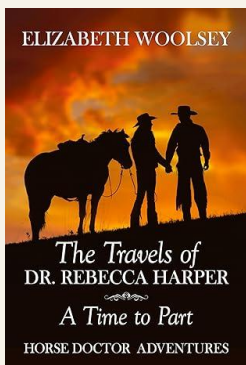

Well, that didn't happen - the portal which brought Lauren to Rebecca and the 1800s is damaged by the storm and torrential rain that nearly killed Lauren when she arrived. Both women must depend on Sam Buchanan to hopefully reconstruct the portal pool.

While the passage is hopefully reopened, Lauren experiences life in the 1800s. As a modern trained equine veterinarian, Lauren becomes aware of the limitations of practicing veterinary medicine in the 1800s.

Lauren realizes she may not be able to return to her time before winter makes the trip unsurvivable. She also knows she faces the possible murder of Frank Lash and the threat of retribution by the former deputy sheriffs. Their convictions are assured with Lauren's testimony.

Rebecca knows how important it is to facilitate her daughter's safe passage back to the future. She wants what is best for Lauren and yet grieves at the loss of her daughter after a brief visit.

If Lauren can return to the twenty-first century, Rebecca knows she will never see Lauren again, but her love for her husband and his love for her sustains her through this painful parting

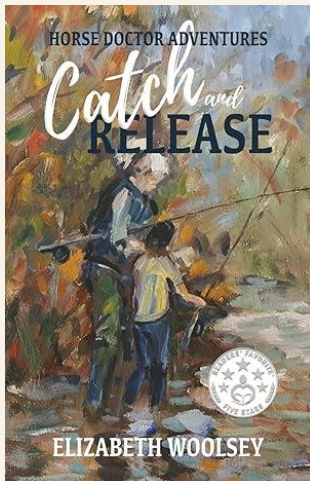

5 – A Time To Part - Time-traveling veterinarian Dr. Rebecca Harper Buchanan has made the ultimate choice: she will remain in the 1800s and never return to the future. Her heart, her family, and her life are now rooted in the rugged and beautiful world of the American West. But as she and Sam Buchanan build a life together, shocking revelations and deadly challenges will test their strength - and their love - like never before.

Rebecca's long-hoped-for reunion with her newlywed daughter Lauren and son-in-law Jim Kennedy is as joyous as it is fragile, and to be honest, humorous too, as she watches Sam wrestle with both Lauren and Jim wearing shorts in the 1800s! When the young couple steps through the portal to visit Rebecca and Sam in the past, they bring with them the promise of a family restored. But they also bring devastating news that shakes Rebecca's understanding of her own history to its core.

Their joy is tragically short-lived. Jim goes missing, and as hours stretch into days, the situation becomes desperate. Rebecca and Sam must join forces on a perilous rescue mission that leads them deep into dangerous and uncharted territory. Along the way, they uncover long-buried secrets about Sam's deceased son, Hank Buchanan, revelations that could change the course of their family forever.

Fiction – Horse Doctor Adventures

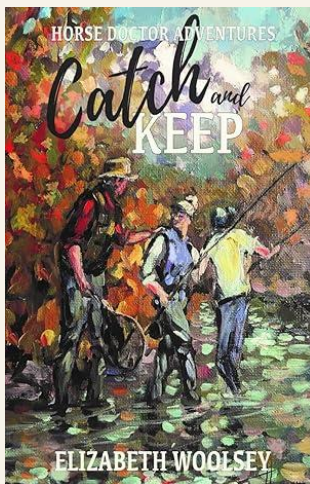

1 – Catch And Release - Join Dr. Maggie Kincaid on a thrilling adventure into retirement as she trades in her stethoscope for a fishing rod and a quiet life in the mountains.

After leaving behind a potentially dangerous occupation, Maggie embraces a new life as a writer in a remote log cabin nestled in the mountains. With a tranquil trout stream flowing through her meadow and old horses by her side, Maggie finds solace in her new home.

But her peaceful existence is soon disrupted when she learns about the tragic history of her property. Undeterred by the past, Maggie forges ahead and begins to build relationships with the locals, including a young, mysterious boy who offers his help. As she settles into her new life, she also begins to navigate the world of publishing, signing a contract that secures her a coveted spot in the industry.

But the question remains: will Maggie be able to withstand what's to come?

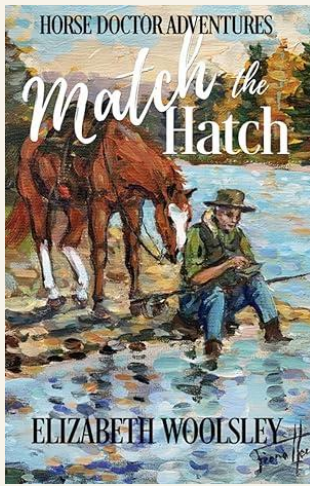

2 – Catch And Keep - Join Dr. Maggie Kincaid on a journey of healing, self-discovery, and second chances in a breathtaking New Zealand fishing lodge.

Dr. Maggie Kincaid's life has been anything but easy, but she's determined to find joy once again. Following years in Australia, Maggie retreats to a remote New Zealand fishing lodge with her two best friends. Amidst wild trout, stunning scenery, and old colleagues, Maggie begins to heal and rediscover her love for life.

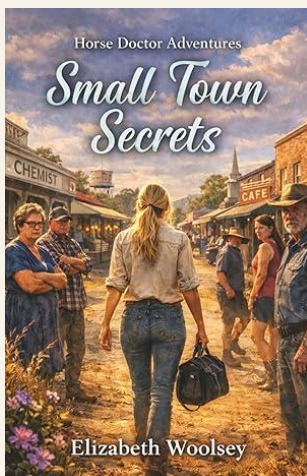

However, trust becomes a key issue when Maggie suspects two men have ulterior motives and she doesn't want to be their "Plan B." With the help of her friends and newfound community, Maggie navigates these challenges and grapples with the idea of making New Zealand her new home.

As Maggie finds her footing, she also takes on the responsibility of helping a boy she rescued back in her stateside mountain home find stability in a loving and safe environment. Through these experiences, Maggie learns the importance of trust, forgiveness, and taking chances on love and life.

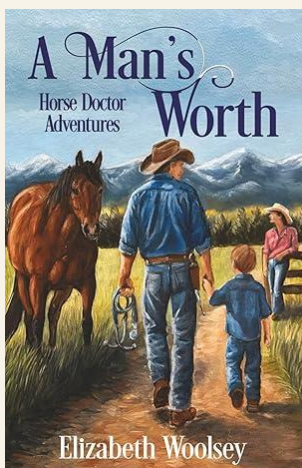

3 - Match The Hatch - Maggie Kincaid is marrying the famous and charismatic Colin Chandler. It's far from the quiet, reclusive life she envisioned when she retired from veterinary medicine and moved back to the States after many years practicing in Australia as a horse vet. She still must testify in a trial where high-level government officials have been caught running drugs from Mexico to the US. So, on her wedding day, she receives death threats. Is there a jealous woman who fantasizes about marrying the television and movie star? Or is it the cartel trying to make sure she is not 'available' to testify in the upcoming trial?

At the wedding, she meets her former vet school instructor, who has found bizarre evidence in the disappearance of her vet school friend, who was killed in a rock slide. What has she stumbled into? Who is threatening her? The cartel reaches high into governments on both sides of the border. Where can she hide until the pending trial? Is there more to her classmate's disappearance so many years ago?

Small Town Secrets - Carly Langley, an American born veterinarian, is living the dream. She has the perfect job as a horse vet living in a rural community with her two small children and devoted physician husband. She has friends and social standing until....an elderly neighbour and babysitter is found dead. Who or what killed her beloved adopted grandmother? Who can she depend on to help her solve this mystery? Who can she trust? Carly's life is changed forever in the aftermath of this tragedy.

A Man's Worth - What happens when a retired veterinarian is summoned back to the rugged mountains of the West - not to doctor horses, but to write the final story of a man who helped shape a generation of equine medicine?

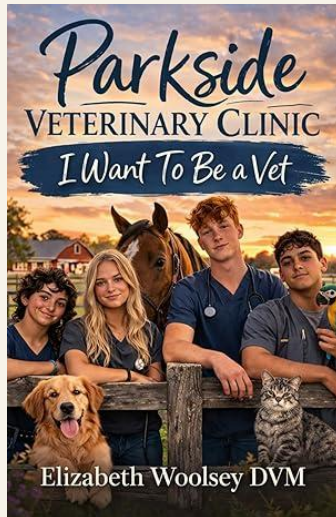

Dr. Hayley Alexander, once a trailblazing horse vet, gets a phone call that upends her quiet, post-retirement life. It's her former boss, Dr. Bill O'Neal, aging but unbowed, and he has a final request: "Write my story." It's not a simple favour. It's a reckoning - with love, legacy, and a past full of dusty barns, trout streams, and decisions that changed lives.

Set against the backdrop of mountain lakes, fly fishing, and fading memories, A Man's Worth is part memoir, part second-chance adventure. As Hayley dives into the task, she's drawn back into the rhythms of veterinary life, the moral weight of hard choices, and the undeniable pull of old friendships - some of which blur the line between platonic and something more.

Bill O'Neal is cantankerous, deeply flawed, and entirely unforgettable. As Hayley navigates his fading health, the quiet sorrow of his wife's decline, and the expectations of his fractured family, she confronts her own regrets and ambitions. The book she came to write becomes something more: a story of healing, honesty, and humour - even as the clock runs out.

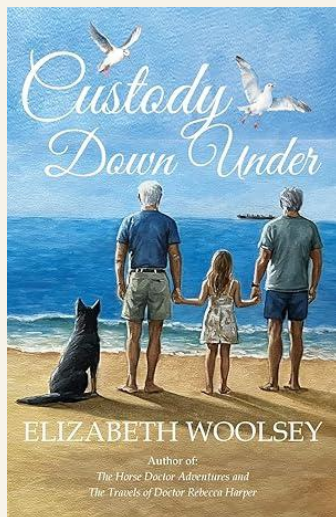

Other Fiction

Parkside Veterinary Clinic – I Want To Be A Vet - What's it like to work at a Veterinary Clinic? Spoiler alert: It's not all puppies and kittens.

Four high school students discover the difficult aspects of the profession, gain knowledge and experience the satisfaction of helping animals in crisis.

Who will prove themselves and earn the coveted role of Veterinary Assistant at Parkside?

Custody Down Under – Bound By Loss And Saved By Love -

Custody Down Under is a heartwarming, cross-continental family drama filled with emotion, humour, and the unexpected joys of second chances. When six-year-old Maddison Taylor is orphaned under mysterious circumstances, two grieving grandfathers-who've never met-find themselves at the centre of a custody battle that spans the globe. One is a dignified retired professor of reproductive medicine from New Zealand. The other, a weathered but brilliant veterinary orthopaedic surgeon from South Carolina. Both are ill-equipped for child-rearing. Neither wants to give her up.

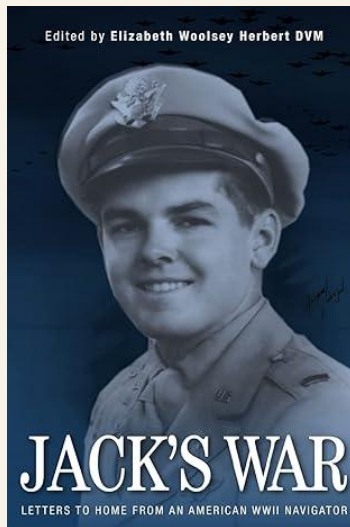

But Maddison, headstrong and heartbreakingly perceptive, has other plans.

Set between New Zealand, South Carolina, and the Australian coast, Custody Down Under weaves a multi-generational story about love, loss, and legacy. As the two men slowly navigate their own regrets and forge an unlikely friendship, they begin to see that Maddison may be their best-and last-chance at redemption.

Adding to the mix are two very different women: Lindy, the compassionate Australian veterinarian who has had her own tragedy, and Fiona, a sharp-tongued Australian caseworker who isn't quite as jaded as she seems. Together, this unlikely circle must confront old wounds, international legal hurdles, and the biggest question of all-what truly defines a family?

Non-Fiction

Jack's War - Jack Woolsey enlisted at the age of 19 in the Army Air Corps and flew 35 missions over Germany as a Liberator navigator. He survived and became a member of the Lucky Bastards Club. He wrote weekly letters to his family from the time he left California through his basic and navigational training in Texas and Idaho, and continued the letters from his base near Norwich in the UK while he flew his mission. His father saved all the original letters and actual mission maps and mission statements in albums that became known to Jack's family shortly before his death. The transposed letters reflect a young man's real experiences and transition through the war.

There is no enhancement or editing of this collection of letters and photographs. This makes this collection historically significant. True WWII enthusiasts will appreciate the significance. Jack's letters during basic and navigational training are rare. Before he died, he read The Wild Blue: The Men and Boys Who Flew the B-24s Over Germany 1944-45 by Stephen Ambrose. He said that book truly reflected his experience of military life. The letters support this sentiment. This is a must read for historians and descendants of WWII Liberator crewmen. This is how some of the "greatest generation" became a powerful fighting force.
