

The Red Mist

Blurb

After surviving a brutal car crash unscathed, the Red Mist realizes his life can never be ordinary again.

With powers he barely understands - vanishing into shadows, slipping between worlds - he's compelled to use them to help the overlooked in his city. But balancing hero work with life as a "normal" thirty-something is no easy feat. Personal relationships, career goals, and his own past tug at him while his shadowed alter ego demands more.

It's a battle between the person he was and the hero he might become.

Just as he's finding his footing, he leans on his best friend, Paul, whose sharp wit and unwavering support help him navigate the growing complexities of his double life. But even Paul's help might not be enough as two powerful forces draw close: Victoria De Luca, the captivating granddaughter of a feared crime boss, and Dean Mermen, a tech mogul with ambitions that stretch into the shadows. Both claim they need him, but neither is what they seem.

Loyalties stretch thin as darkness seeps into every corner. The Red Mist must decide who - and what - he's really fighting for... before he loses everything.
